Match and Training Balls for Professional and Grassroots Football

MINERVA

Welcome to one of the beautiful games leading brands – Minerva Footballs.

From the 1950s through to the late 1980's the football of choice for a large number of leading British professional football clubs was the Minerva Football.

This outstanding ball was designed and manufactured in the UK and was the ball of choice for Internationals, Cup Finals, and by professional football clubs at the top of the British game. The ball was designed to perform at the highest levels of world football.

In the 1980s however, the sporting giants Nike and Mitre signed an exclusive deal with the Football Association, effectively freezing out the Minerva brand. As good as the product was, the only league that could use the ball was the Vauxhall Conference.

The Minerva ball range was a favourite with players and managers and was considered outstanding in play and that's why we have brought this famous brand back with a 2023 update - we have ensured the styling, manufactured quality, are all on a par with any current ball.

Our range of Minerva Balls includes the relaunch of the famous Supreme match ball, but also includes our new training ball the Sierra and Centurion education ball to name but a few.

MODERN CLASSICS

Minerva Football Company was founded in 1953 by Adri and Jan Metselaar and aided by North London sports shop owner S. Brigg & Son of Wood Green.

The Minerva ball was first used by Wolverhampton Wanderers in 1954 in exhibition games against Spartak Moscow and Honved Budapest as the white balls were ideal for playing under lights.

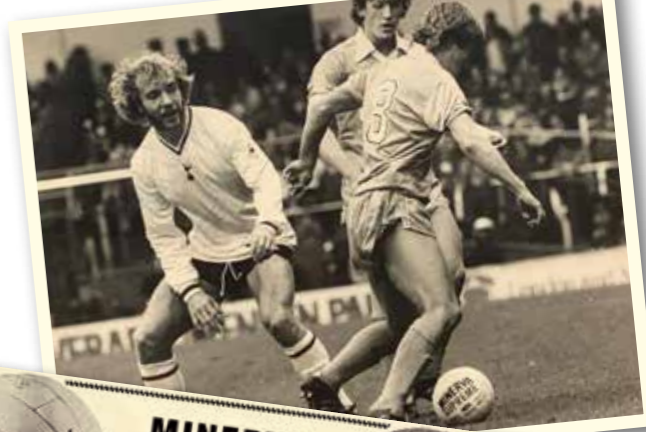

Wolverhampton Wanderers were the first top flight division club to use the Minerva Supreme for all their home games, a relationship that continued throughout the 60s and 70s.

Introduced by the legendary manager Bill Nicholson, Tottenham Hotspur started to use the Minerva Supreme match ball in 1958, a relationship that lasted for 29 consecutive seasons.

Throughout the 60s, 70s and 80s the Minerva brand was the choice of many Football League clubs, including the likes of Tottenham Hotspur, Wolverhampton Wanderers, West Ham Utd, Fulham, Leyton Orient, Newcastle Utd, Sunderland, Southampton, Chelsea, Ipswich Town and Bristol City to name but a few.

Minerva Footballs were used for many FA Cup Finals and England home international matches played at Wembley, notably the famous 1973 Cup Final between Sunderland and Leeds Utd when the match referee Ken Burns selected 3 Minerva yellow balls. This was the last occasion when the match ball was chosen by the referee.

In 1992 with the advent of the Premier League, Minerva signed a deal to become the sole supplier of match balls to the Vauxhall Conference League.
